

B.Com. (Prog.)

Program outcomes

The students who have completed this program (under CBCS) will be:

- Able to evaluate the various perspectives that are provided by the prism of these field-international business, finance, accounting, human resource management, corporate and business laws, taxation, marketing, and so on. Along with a comprehensive picture of business situations by employing contemporary strategies for addressing issues that arise in the dynamic business world.
- Capable of effectively delivering and communicating business-related information.
- Possess management abilities such as teamwork, cooperation, motivation, and leadership, among others;
- Capable of developing analytical reasoning and problem-solving skills. That make it easier for a potential employee to develop her character and inspire others in an organization.
- Capable of learning the fundamentals of computers and computerized accounting in order to become digitally literate and self-reliant.
- Ready to figure out the need of the ongoing industry world and proficient to see various angles and aspects according to worldwide viewpoint.